The experience which [redacted] has acquired in some six years while associated with our special projects offers us a portfolio of qualifications which readily meet the requirements of the job. His intimate knowledge of our operations, as well as our associations with both industry and other governmental agencies, makes his selection as Executive Officer a particularly attractive one.

We appreciate the fact that the position of Executive Officer would not necessarily further the specialty of [REDACTED] [REDACTED]; however, we do suggest that it would greatly enhance the spectrum of his experience, broaden his abilities, and arm him with a fair appreciation of management and organization, welcomed assets to any career service.
